DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 6, and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Shouse, Jr. (5,496,083).

Shouse, Jr. discloses a tool for threading a seat belt through a child safety seat. The tool has an elongated straight rod and on each end of and integral to the rod, a generally arcuate "hook", the "hooks" lying in respective planes which are orthogonal to one another.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1, 6, and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Marker et al. (5,620,231) in view of Scheldorfer (2,663,588).

Marker et al. disclose a tool for threading a seat belt through a child safety seat. Marker et al. disclose the tool as claimed, e.g. an elongated rod, and an integral generally arcuate hook, except for providing only one hook. Scheldorfer discloses an elongated tool for pulling a zipper. Scheldorfer teaches that it would be desirable to provide a finger gripping portion, or handle, in order to facilitate the pulling of the tool, the finger gripping portion, or handle, being in the form of a second hook integral to the end of the rod opposite the first hook, and further teaches that the finger gripping portion may lie in the same plane, or a perpendicular plane, to the first hook. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the seat installation tool of Marker et al. by providing a second hook, or gripping portion, on the opposite end of the elongated member, such as the finger gripping portion as taught by Scheldorfer, where the finger gripping portion may lie in the same plane, or in a plane perpendicular to the plane of the first hook, the benefit of adding this second hook being that the second hook provides a user better grip, or control, of the tool as the tool is being used.
